

Random lengths

All tiles in a row will be of the same width but various different lengths.

Care should be taken to ensure shorter and longer lengths are distributed randomly throughout the row, avoiding similar lengths being in one small area.

The pattern created by the differing lengths will vary between each product.

For stones supplied in more than one width, the rows should alternate between each. For example:

A stone supplied in widths of 400mm and 500mm should be laid with one row measuring 400mm wide, then one row measuring 500mm wide, and so on.
